

Happy Holidays!

I made a donation in your name to the Menu for Hope VI, an online food blogger-organized fundraiser benefitting the United Nations World Food Programme!

Since food bloggers want to entice their readers to donate to the WFP, they offer bid items, often homemade or exclusive items, in exchange for $10 donations in the form of "tickets."

This year's donations will support the Purchase for Progress program which enables smallholder and low-income farmers to supply food to WFP's global operation

In the past three years, Menu for Hope have raised nearly a quarter of a million dollars to help the WFP end world hunger.

This year, I bought ticket(s) in your name, and I hope your name is extracted for this bid item:

Check ChezPim.com for details on bid item extractions on January 18, 2010.
